Whether it was for better or for worse, this past year changed everyone. For some, it felt like time was lost, and for others, the break quarantine offered was an opportunity for growth. These events were especially important for Gen Z. Coming of age during an eventful presidential election, the Black Lives Matter movement and a pandemic has divided us, but also given us a chance to come together over shared experiences. The events we've experienced since the beginning of the pandemic will have a lasting impact on our futures, whether it's about the careers we choose, the effect the pandemic will have on our habits, or the way we see the world.
